

ITALY HAS FAILED TO CHECK Foe

RETREAT CONTINUES—ENGLISH AND FRENCH TROOPS HAVE ARRIVED.

RETREAT IS ORDERLY

English Dispatches Announce That on the West Front the Germans Have Failed to Gain.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Italian Army Headquarters, Nov. 9.—A dozen bridges have been blown up on the Livenza river to arrest and delay as much as possible the advance of the Austro-Germans towards the Piave river. The Livenza is a smaller river than the Tagliamento and offers fewer difficulties to an invading army. It is now better organized than it was on the banks of the Tagliamento.

The French and British leaders who have come to Italy had a conference of two hours today with King Victor Emmanuel. The military measures discussed in advance and cordial collaboration. On leaving the King the party visited French and British troops going toward the front.

On West Front. Canadian Headquarters in France, via London, Nov. 9.—Hindenburg's orders to retake Passchendaele at all costs have not yet resulted in any activity. Yesterday and today they have been quiet except for our artillery which has been maintaining a harassing fire on all routes of the approach to the center of activity in the enemy area. Reports of the eastward movement of the enemy batteries possibly indicate he may be preparing new gun position to support an attack on the ridge but in the meantime the Canadians are strengthening their new positions and preparing for emergencies.

Praise Canadians. Two German commanders with their staff were captured in the last enemy offensive. They were taken to a hospital in which our troops maintained their attack. "With such men, do any thing," is one captured officer's comment on the Canadians. The prisoners are held in admiration of our troops, especially their courage.

Are Advancing. Berlin, Nov. 9.—British Admiralty wireless press, Nov. 9.—The Austro-German forces in the Adriatic are retreating. The resistance of the Italian army is advancing toward the Piave river the war office announces.

Forty Turkish guns were captured says the British official statement, announcing the Ottoman retreat. British and French naval forces are co-operating against the Turkish communication along the Mediterranean coasts.

FORMER JANESVILLE MAN IS CELEBRATING HIS 100TH BIRTHDAY

Martin Ryder, A Resident of This City For Thirty-Two Years, Is One Hundred Years Old Today.

Martin Ryder, a former resident of this city, now living in Beloit, is celebrating his one hundredth birthday today. Mr. Ryder made Janesville his home for thirty-two years, moving to Beloit in 1902. He is hearty and hale and takes an active interest in the present war, declaring that the allies will surely be victorious in the end.

Mr. Ryder was born in Ireland, November 9, 1817. When thirty-five years old he took passage on a boat for this country, his ship being the "Bridget Bonable" and lived on a farm near the Bonable institute for thirty-two years. After a few years on a farm in Green county, he moved back to Beloit, where he has since resided.

MANY ADVANCES ARE RESULT OF THE WAR

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Behind British Lines in France, Nov. 9.—The American doctors who are at work in various parts of the British front find that army surgery has advanced more than in any other branch of the war's activities. In the early part of the war wounds were of an average gravity far beyond that expected from the experience of previous wars, while tetanus, gas-gangrene and severe suppuration were general and hundreds died of comparatively trivial injuries for lack of care and prompt treatment.

This situation has now been altered almost beyond recognition. Serum treatment has almost done away with tetanus, while earlier and more energetic surgical treatment has largely defeated gas-gangrene. More and more of the major surgical work is being carried out in the casualty clearing stations, and some of the most famous of the British surgeons are now in the front lines.

The key to the whole improvement in surgical and medical treatment has been the surgeon nearer and nearer to the fighting lines. The enemy has endeavored to counter this by persistent bombing of the advanced hospitals.

Most of their time since their arrival in advanced hospitals within sound of the German guns.

The rule of the Army medical officer is not always welcomed by the patients, but it is a rule which in previous wars would have been death traps, a mortality as low as the most approved medical sort. The routine work of these medical officers has probably served more lives than all the other medical work of the war.

COMMISSION TO AID STATE WORKINGMEN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Nov. 9.—One of the most popular pieces of literature ever issued by the industrial commission is the "What To Do When Hurt." This card was issued because it develops in many compensation cases that workingmen are not familiar with their rights and duties under the compensation law. This card warns all workmen to report at once their accident, however slight, to their employer, foreman, and to tell him how and where they were hurt. It also advises workmen that they must go to the doctor to whom the employer sends them, or they will lose their claim for compensation. It also advises workmen when payments of compensation are due and suggests that they write to the industrial commission if they have trouble getting the compensation due them.

Thirty thousand copies of this card have already been printed and distributed, and more will probably be required. The Milwaukee Federated Trades Council has had the card translated into German and Polish, with the view towards reaching workmen who do not understand English.

The issuance of this card is part of an educational campaign now being conducted by the industrial commission to better acquaint the people of the state with the various laws affecting them. Another phase of this same campaign is the addresses which George P. Hambrecht, chairman of the industrial commission and others of its staff, have made in various places of the state on the provisions of the new child labor law.

LABEL SUIT IS STARTED BY SENATOR

The complaint declares that La Follette "has been injured as therein alleged in his reputation and honor by the publication of said articles and to the extent of $100,000."

INVESTIGATION OF CAR SHORTAGE NOW ON IN WASHINGTON

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 9.—The car shortage situation has become so serious in Wisconsin that Railroad Commissioner John Allen is in Washington today to take the matter up with the federal government. The railroad cars of the United States have been pooled and are being handled by a committee on car service of the American Railway association.

Working in the northwest lumber for the ship building and cantonments was purchased in the south and many of the cars that would otherwise be used in the northwest are now in southern states. Mr. Allen is holding a conference in Washington today to ascertain if some of the cars cannot be released for use in the Wisconsin district where the car shortage problem is growing more acute.

The commission is being stormed with complaints of car shortage originating not only in the lumber industry but in the Wisconsin railroad commission today.

The greatest demand for cars appears to be for refrigerators for shipping perishable produce. Something of the unusual condition prevailing in this state with respect to cabbage and potatoes may be learned from the figures furnished by the Wisconsin district.

The 1916 production of potatoes was 13,830,000 bushels. The 1917 production was 37,000,000 bushels. In 1916 there was 12,855 acres of cabbage and in 1917 there were 13,000 acres producing 119,000 tons. Yet these figures do not adequately represent the increased demand for cars because higher prices and the promises of the government and civil institutions to harvest, market and preserve food crops to the utmost extent have animated farmers and other producers to plant and raise more produce. Moreover the inclement weather during the month of October has increased the insistence of the government for the production of food crops.

Refrigerator equipment. In former years, cabbage and potatoes at this season of the year have moved in box cars and stock cars. This year refrigerators are demanded.

A statement committed at the commission regarding the car shortage problem calls attention to the coal situation. The movement of coal, the delivery of fuel. It calls attention also to the fact that not all of the sugar beets have yet been moved to the mills.

The quantity of sugar beets produced in this state has increased, continues the statement. "The Rock County Sugar company at Janesville shut down through the inability to get cars for the handling of beets.

There are quantities of beets at Trevor, Wisconsin, and at Antioch, Orchard Place and Wheeler, Ill., on the "500" line that cannot be moved to the delivery point. The beets in Dodge county, near Lomira, which are in danger of loss.

"In the northeastern part of the state, in the vicinity of Green Bay, there is a great deal of hay that is not moving. This hay is destined for points in the southern part of the state, and it is available would prevent some of the movement of cattle. It cannot be moved because box cars are not available."

It is this situation that Commissioner Allen is now directing his attention. Thursday Mr. Allen held conferences with the heads of all of the large roads operating in the state, at Chicago, and is in Washington today to further present his plans.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 9.—Fishermen who have a contract for removing the carp from Lake Monona made $15,000 in one haul. They strangled a net one mile long and landed in about 250,000 pounds of fish, mostly carp. The catch is the largest ever made in the history of the state.

AMERICAN AVIATORS WILL BE IMPORTANT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, Nov. 9.—Captain de Kerillis of the French air service, hero of innumerable air raids, in an interview with the United Press today, pointed out the great importance of these air operations and predicted that the co-operation of America in these undertakings would "shake the morals of the German people and hasten the end of the war."

"Air bombardments," said the captain, "are becoming one of the most scientific forms of warfare. Every day they are becoming more complicated. First of all, one must bear in mind that the aviation de chasse and the aviation de bombardment are two very different things."

"The business of the former is to attack, that of the latter to maneuver. By maneuver I mean that the function of air bombardments, is, either to prevent concentration of enemy air craft, or to force it to give battle."

"Then of course there are reprisal raids such as those we have just lately carried out. About the effectiveness of these reprisal raids, when they are successful, there is no doubt, and I will give you an example."

On June 21 of last year we undertook a raid on Karlsruhe as a reprisal for a recent raid on Bar-le-Duc. The effect of the French raid was so salutary that the long time German raids on French towns ceased. On German aviators, whom we captured, we found strict orders to cease bombarding French towns.

"The German military authorities it is entirely a question of calculating the gain and loss of an enterprise. When they decide that the price for a certain enterprise is too exorbitant, they abandon it, at least temporarily. In the case of the German air raids, which ceased for a while, such a calculation had certainly been made."

"Finally, however, the Germans evidently decided that it was worth while beginning their terrorizing system again, so they started their air raids more, though mostly on England."

PLAN TO COMPLETE NEW STATE CAPITOL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 9.—The functions of the state capital commission are now being exercised by the engineering department. While the original building is finished, many small details remain to be done to entirely complete the structure. Every part of the building commission during the past year has been appointed as a member of the staff of the department of engineering and retaining the same charge of the work of completion and maintenance of the building. The state engineering department has supervision in the construction of all state buildings.

The difficulties encountered in construction have been increasingly difficult during the past months, due to shortage of labor and technical men, scarcity of building materials. Every estimate made about a year ago as a basis for appropriations are now inadequate in many respects. Every minute being made to do only the absolutely necessary work in these particular lines and where such work can be delayed, recommendations to this effect are made.

Working on the University of Wisconsin is at low tide. The immediate future will witness the erection of the state board of control and the state conservation commission have made a survey of the available lands in northern Wisconsin for the purpose of being acquired by the state. A portion of the legislature permitting the utilization of 3,000 or more acres of state lands in northern Wisconsin for a state prison camp, and farm to be used for the reformation of prisoners and the different state institutions.

STATE PRISON FARM SITE IS UNDECIDED

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Nov. 8.—No state prison farm is likely to be selected this fall, although the state board of control and the state conservation commission have made a survey of the available lands in northern Wisconsin for the purpose of being acquired by the state. A portion of the legislature permitting the utilization of 3,000 or more acres of state lands in northern Wisconsin for a state prison camp, and farm to be used for the reformation of prisoners and the different state institutions.

Owing to the unusual demands on prison labor it has been decided not to select the prison farm this fall. All of the available prisoners are at work in highway camps or in the building of the home for the feeble-minded at Union Grove or the home for the feeble-minded at Taycheedah.

"Not all of the prisoners can be used in camps of this sort," said a member of the state board of control. "The board of control has things for prisoners to do that it would cripple us to spare prisoners this fall to clear up the lands and put them into shape for a crop next year. We will have to make a report of its findings to the next session of the legislature."

REPORT CONDITIONS IN ITALY MENACING TO PUBLIC WELFARE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Nov. 9.—Confidential sources from Italy to the American government today painted a picture of a cold and hungry populace which officials consider menacing.

It is a matter of common knowledge among Washington newspaper men that conditions in the empire of the ancient Romans are far worse than the public has been permitted to know. There is practically no coal for private homes. The government is not a single fire will be lighted this winter in any hotel or private home in Italy. Pine cones and old newspapers burned in iron buckets give all the heat the public is allowed to get.

The army is hard hit too. Owing to lack of coal Italy has been compelled to quit the making of cannons. She gets her artillery supply from Great Britain. Other manufacturers have no coal at all.

Italy's pre-war imports were 850,000 tons. Her present war minimum is 500,000 tons. Italy is short of 350,000 tons, and even of this she has been able to get only about 66 per cent. Her reserve supplies have been entirely exhausted.

Italy's food control is short of time to solve Italy's food shortage troubles. Prices are fixed every person is rationed, food products are directly controlled by the government. There is no such thing as a free market in Italy. In Rome, Genoa, Naples and Florence they have what they call cake. It is really bread with a large proportion of sugar. The cake is so hard it is a crime punishable by heavy fine. They have tried to use saccharine, but it is a coarser product and very unhealthy. Except at rare intervals, eggs are rationed. There are two meatless days a week. Even on the five meat days meat fit to eat is hard to get. There is no such thing as a pig. Chickens are a rare treat.

Restaurants and cafes may keep open only a few stipulated hours a day. Some days a very short time is allowed for a general use.

There is an acute shortage of all cereals. Corn cannot be fed to horses under the law. As this order practically wiped out the breeding of Parma, Reggino, Emilia, Ferrara and Ravenna, the horses were ordered slaughtered by thousands. This has made the shortage of horse meat and furs acute.

There is a shortage of butter and cheese is keenly felt. Short imports led to the slaughter of one-fourth of Italy's herds, which accentuated the crisis in beef, milk, butter and cheese.

Olive oil is used for cooking almost exclusively. All bread is a very dark, heavy war bread. Some of it is starchy and hard to eat. Olive oil is a much used though despised dish.

This shortage has brought an embargo on food exports and prices of business have risen. Meat, fish, oil, and other milk products, fresh and dried fruits, oil, chestnuts, vegetables, forage and fish preserved in oil.

Meats in public places are rigidly rationed. The serving of butter or cream or dishes garnished with eggs, is unlawful. No lunch of whatever price can contain more than two dishes, no meal can contain more than three. Railway restaurants may open only one hour before the departure of the first train and remain open only one hour after the departure of the last train.

KORNILOFF WILL BE COURT MARTIALED

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Petrograd, Nov. 9.—The military revolution committee has decided to bring General Korniloff, leader of the recent revolt and supporter of the Petrograd and Moscow governments, to trial before a military revolution tribunal.

Lieutenant General Korniloff was commander in chief of the Russian army when last September several detachments under his command marched to Petrograd. He was removed from office. Korniloff was named to a post from Petrograd when they deserted to the provisional government. The movement collapsed on September 13 and the general returned to the revolt but General Korniloff has never been brought to trial.

GERMANS QUESTION SUCCESS OF U-BOAT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Nov. 9.—Captain Persius, naval expert of the Berliner Tageblatt notes the growing impatience among the Germans with the result of the submarine campaign registering a swelling German navy. "When shall we have England beaten?" he asks. Captain Persius says with the 1917 harvest and important crops the food problem can no longer become the excuse for the next six months at least to make Great Britain inclined to conclude peace. He holds the submarine campaign as a "wildly and corruptly oppressing a person under color of office."

BERLIN ANNOUNCES NEW APPOINTMENTS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Amsterdam, Nov. 9.—Frederick von Payer, a progressive leader in the German Reichstag, has been appointed to a semi-official telegram received from Berlin. It adds the appointment of Herr Friedberg, leader of national liberal vice-president of the Reichstag, as a member of the cabinet.

KERENSKY A PRISONER?

Evidence the Trouble Was Instigated by German Agents Using German Money to Sway Masses.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Petrograd, Nov. 9.—At a meeting of the congress of soldiers and workmen and deputies last night a majority of the revolutionary military committee said that on Wednesday Premier Kerensky at Gatchina, 23 miles from Petrograd, addressed 6,000 soldiers who were on their way from the front to Petrograd after conference the soldiers decided not to proceed further to Petrograd.

Explains Arrest.

Leon Trotsky president of the executive committee of Petrograd council of workmen and soldiers delegates explained the arrest of certain members of the Kerensky government was not an act of vengeance or political repression. All members of the late government would be tried for complicity in the Korniloff movement. A political party to which the socialist revolutionaries belonged have decided to turn over the socialist as well as others for trial. In the meanwhile they are being held under domiciliary arrest.

High School Will Play Here Saturday

Tomorrow afternoon at the fair grounds the local high school eleven will meet Edgerton high in the second game of the season. There are many expressions of opinion as to the way the game will go, but all seem to be pretty confident in the locals, although the last four games have been defeats.

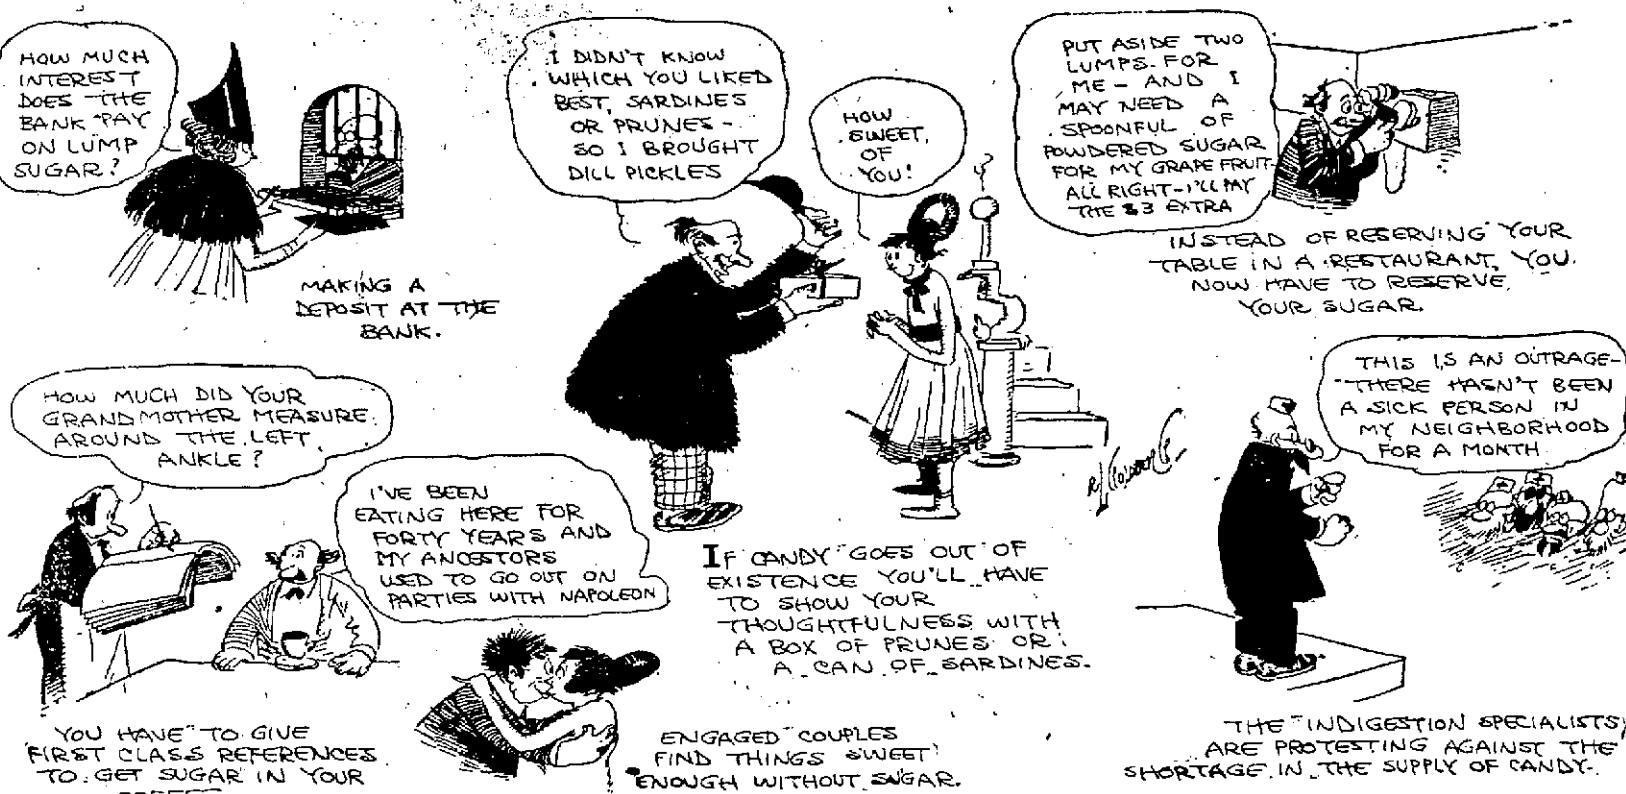

At the past week Coach Philpott has been running the boys through endless practices preparing them for tomorrow's game. Many new plays have been introduced and old ones improved upon, until now he believes the boys will be able to play a more efficient game than any other team played this season. The absence of Powers in tomorrow's game, due to an accident in last Saturday's game, will be felt very keenly, but every effort is being made to secure a man who will successfully fill his place.

The game will begin at two-thirty. Reports are that Edgerton is intending to send a large delegation of rooters with the team, and, if possible, show the Janesville rooters up, but if the mass meeting held this afternoon gives any indication of the number of rooters Janesville will have on the field, the Edgertonians will have to do some loud yelling in order to drown out Janesville.

Miller Higgins is quoted as saying that he will engage a veteran coach to handle the Yankees' pitchers next year. It is said that Higgins may secure Paddy Livingston, once a well known catcher, who managed the Milwaukee team this season. Livingston coached the Cardinals' pitchers last year and got excellent results. Higgins signs him Duke Farrell, who served as coach and scout under Bill Donovan, will probably be turned loose from the Yankees. Higgins also is expected to sign Jimmy Duggan with a new trainer.

Miller Higgins, the Yankees' new manager, is dead against his players smoking cigarettes during the playing season. So it can be seen that the Yanks will have to do without them next summer.

IF YOU OWN A LUMP OF SUGAR NOW YOU'RE RICH.

BADGERS PREPARING FOR GAME SATURDAY

Madison, Wis., Nov. 7.—The varsity squad is undergoing one of the hardest weeks of the season. Last night out at Camp Randall the varsity full strength was pitted against the freshmen, who were coached in Ohio formations.

Coach Richards is fighting hard to ward off any slowness that sometimes attacks a team after a big victory. The showing that Captain Hancock makes next Saturday will go a long way in deciding his chances to make the All Western if not the All American team at the end of the season. Hancock has outplayed every tackle he has faced so far this season. Few football camps could deny that he far outplayed the famous Hauser. Eber Simpson is another man who is bound to receive mention at the end of the season if he continues to display the same kind of football that he showed in the Minnesota game.

RICHARDS' GOLDFISH TEAM
DEFEATS KUECK'S COLTS

At the East Side bowling alleys last evening, Kueck's Colts were trimmed by a margin of 193 pins in their battle with Richards' Goldfish. Hughes, of the losing team, was high man with 184 pins in the second game. The scores:

| Kueck's Colts. | Richards' Goldfish. |
|----------------|---------------------|
| Marsh | 110 107 128 |
| Hammond | 134 147 138 |
| Hughes | 132 184 138 |
| Robbins | 157 139 144 |
| Kueck | 163 147 132 |
| Totals | 747 724 696—2167 |

It is an unfortunate truth that there are some of the going club who require alcoholic stimulus to their game. A story is told of one who was playing a round recently equipped with a pint flask. At the rate of a sip a hole, the fire water was about gone when he propped one from the eighth tee, a 145 yard hole. As the player neared the green in an unsteady fashion, his caddy rushed up to him.

"I've found the ball," I've found it," excitedly exclaimed the boy.

"Say, just c'm have a look at it."

He led the golfer to the hole, pointed into the cup and exclaimed: "There it is right in the hole!"

Leaving over, rather unsteadily, the player saw through a slightly blurred vision, the shining white ball.

"Thash right, m'boy," y're right, he mumbled. "Slits in the hole. Now, whatcha know about that for luck? Game my niblick."

SUNDAY IS THE BIG DAY FOR THE BOYS
DOWN AT ROCKFORD

Three Hundred and Thirty-first Machine Gun Battalion, Camp Grant, Nov. 9.—If all the loved ones at home had an opportunity of watching their boys at Camp Grant, and observing their training, method of living and attitude toward it all there would be many a surprised mother and sweet heart.

However, several things would prove rather puzzling. "Why is it," someone would say, "that on Saturday morning the men wash their dishes so much cleaner, brush their shoes more thoroughly, and in general clean up more than they do on any other day?" The answer the soldier gives is that Saturday is "inspection" not only by the company command, but occasionally by the major.

Of course everyone knows that army life, besides giving a fellow physical development and hardiness, develops precision, alertness and neatness to a surprising extent. The officers will not tolerate a unit of soldiers that is one of the first things a rookie must learn. Now, to foster this pride in neatness and cleanliness, every Saturday morning is regularly set aside as "inspection" day. Upon this morning special care is taken by every man with regard to the condition of his mess kit, his equipment, his bunk, and also himself. Each man does his own cleaning. His mess kit, and must be clean shaven and have his hair cut short. All mess kits and toilet articles must be laid upon a clean towel at the foot of the bunk, and in fact everything in the top shape for inspection. The bunk must be carefully swept from under the bunks, and all window sills and radiators must be spotless.

When the assembly is over, the men are taken into formation in the company street and are examined by the captain, on personal neatness. They are then dismissed and return to their barracks, where each man places his attention and waits for the officers to inspect him and his equipment. Absolute cleanliness is the watchword. But so sorry is the man who through careless or negligence has overlooked some dirt or dust. He must suffer a rebuke from the officer who stands the jeers of his comrades after the ordeal is over.

Fair and warmer was the weather report the men of the 331st Machine Gun Battalion read in Saturday's paper and immediately they started to make preparations for the day. The largest dance in the camp has ever entertained. With the stuff in the tube hovering around the 55 mark and with plenty of sunshine, Sunday was crowned by the men of the battalion as the best day they have had since they struck camp. It was an ideal day, and the folks back home took advantage of it and came in droves to see their loved ones.

Again it was a fight between Companies C and D to have the largest crowd—but the boys of Co. D were easily victorious and had by far the largest crowd of visitors in the battalion. Entertainments of all descriptions were held and again Co. D led their comrades by holding a large dance in their lower squad room and inviting the men of other companies. Besides the dancing, each company had its orchestra give a concert during the day, and from early morning until late in the evening the barracks rang with ragtime from the different orchestras. Music is one thing the men love and from the minute they arise in the morning until they close their eyes at night they want music. The boys were all talking about the wonderful day and speculating as to whether they would have another Sunday like it before the cold weather sets in for good.

Sunday is a great day for the men in camp and it with this one thought in mind that assist them to keep in a cheerful mood during the week. Those who go home enjoy themselves and those that remain at the camp are just as happy, because Sunday means seeing the sweethearts, and what more does a soldier want?

Every Wednesday noon an observer will find a corner of Co. C officers who occupied by a group of officers who seem very hard at study or listening intently to a talk. This group of young men represent a Bible class organized and led by Sergeant Brown and at the present time numbers of the members. The men of the Bible class have got together for the purpose of reading and discussing various passages in the Bible, in an informal way. The purpose is not laid purpose of endeavoring to keep in the men the firmness of their convictions and courage to live up to the principles and promises with which they entered the new life. The class meets every noon from 12:15 to 12:30. The N. M. C. A. has furnished the men with small Bibles, and is also co-operating with a success. The orderly room of Co. C has been brightened by the addition of a new typewriter, equipped with a field case and all other preparations of interest of the men. The men of the 331st Machine Gun Battalion, who believe that the units in the camp can best be benefited by gifts of this nature.

Corporal Paul Evely took the writer to the city Sunday afternoon in a borrowed automobile, and by the sound and speed of the car it is judged that Evely would not have a hard time getting the owner's consent to keep it.

Corporal Charles McKeligue of Co. A, 342d Infantry, was a caller at Co. C barracks yesterday, and when seen was partaking of a sumptuous dinner in the presence of Private Robert Fuelleman.

Cyrus Montgomery came into the barracks yesterday afternoon with a dog he was going to present to the company on Monday morning for a mascot. He tied the dog to his bed and paid a soldier a dollar to keep the chain and collar but the canine had left.

First Sergeant Howard L. Smith spent most of Sunday sitting on the front steps waiting for someone from the barracks to bring him that long looked for box of cigars.

The boys are still waiting for Thanksgiving to come and are speculating at the present time as to whether Uncle Sam will furnish them Turkey for dinner, or will it be roast beef.

Sergeant Ray Gleason of the 331st Engineers, a former resident of Janesville, paid a short visit to Corporal Robert Conway Sunday, but Conway was so busy watching the members of the fair sex that Gleason did not have much of a chance to visit.

Private Thomas Farrell returned from home Sunday night carrying a dozen bundles, and he claims that he will have plenty of cake and jelly for the next week or two.

Private Robert Johnstone was the guest of a dinner party in the city Sunday evening, and would not even tell his bunkie who was giving the party in his honor.

Sergeant D. J. Cunningham returned from his trip home Sunday with his usual amount of cigars, and it is the one big puzzle of the company where Dave manages to get all these cigars.

The boys are still arguing over when they will get paid, and many of them have most of their money spent already according to the way they are speculating. Many of them are working over the fact that there is only one more pay day before Christmas.

Morris Goldberg of Beloit entertained more visitors Sunday than any other man in the camp. The boys claim that they all came down to see Morris' new hat.

Corporal Ray Schute of Beloit was in charge of quarters Sunday and he claims the position is similar to that of a bell boy in a large hotel.

It is claimed by many that First Sergeant Howard Smith is taking lessons in horsemanship riding on the quiet. A large saddle adorns the foot of his bunk and he is very nervous about the horse he is going to get.

Bugler Otto Clary was a very busy man Sunday and spent most of the day chinning with a certain young lady from Beloit and could not give a person a minute of his time.

Private Clyde Netts of Beloit spent Sunday reading the paper and was even more interested in the paper than other men were in their visitors.

All the men were in a cheerful mood when they learned that Wisconsin won from Minnesota, and now that the game is over they are getting the dope on the Chicago team.

Lieutenant Roy McIntosh, accompanied by Sergeant Major Arthur Karberg, Sergeant Cunningham and Gallagher, attended a dancing party at the Y. M. C. A. in Rockford last evening, given by the Ladies' Patriotic League. The men all reported a good time and hope there are many more of the parties.

Corporal Paul Evely easily holds the distinction of receiving more long distance telephone calls than any man in the company. Possibly if Paul would put the required amount of stamps on the letters he sends to Broedhead he would not receive as many calls.

Private Arthur Missner of Beloit is wearing a very dejected look these days, and when asked what the cause all you could get out of him was something about the bowling season in Beloit.

Sergeant Major Karberg and Private McCue received a call at headquarters yesterday from the distinguished judge, Gardner Kavelage of Janesville. The judge seemed very pleased with the conditions in the camp and we all you could get out of him was something about the bowling season in Beloit.

A lot of the men of Co. C are going to go home on furloughs today and they are wondering if they will be able to make Madison before the football game between Wisconsin and Ohio State is over.

Cyrus Montgomery of Evansville, cannot understand why it is that the men don't like the roller rink. With claim they have no chance to skate with the members of the fair sex.

Corporal Robert Conway has a habit of sleeping in the morning until 11:30 or so, but after being kidded by the men he decided to get up one morning before breakfast. Imagine the look on his face after getting up on an empty stomach and then having the officers dismiss the company without any physical parade. Conway claims that he will not attempt to get up again, but will take his exercise with Battalion Supply Sergeant Earl Chase.

OUR BOYS. When you add your contribution to the "Y" fund you pay part of the privilege accorded you for being a citizen of the United States. In these strenuous days, you contribute to the moral welfare of our boys, be it at home or across the broad Atlantic. Do not be a derelict. Almost every national fraternal organization has made special drives for work among their own members. The Knights of Columbus have raised and are raising an immense sum, but these various organizations conflict in no way with the work of the army. All are welcome. Race, religion or previous condition of servitude are not asked in these army drives. By your individual contribution to the fund you are helping with the war just the same as the money you loaned Uncle Sam in the Liberty bonds is. They are all "our boys" these chaps who wear the khaki. Do not forget that.

FOOD PRICES. The action taken by Herbert Hoover in fixing the food prices has not been unfair, if you take the word of any individual citizen who handles food products. While it is far above the price paid for farm produce during the civil war period, still, pork, beef and wheat, the staples of the world, are only at a fair point above the prices expected by the consumer. Still not so all can not live. When you still find a family that state no meat has been in their home for weeks, that flour and potatoes are so scarce their appearance on the table in one form or another is a gala event, look behind the scenes and find where the hard earner spends his money and where the family fund is kept. For clothes and entertainment, or for actual necessities. There is always something to explain poverty conditions when wages are as high as they are today. The salaried man is the only one who suffers, and firms are realizing this and raising their employees accordingly. Meantime, remember we are at war and it is a patriotic duty to observe a meanness and a wastefulness to conserve the food supply.

TO THE PARENTS. If the parents would co-operate more frequently with the instructors of their children, would investigate their school standards, their department and conduct, and activities outside school hours, there would not be half the failures in after life that there are. This is the crucial period in every young man and young woman's career. Moral situation may be used in the schools to good advantage, but it is the discipline at home that counts. The parents' responsibility does not end with providing clothes, books, a place to eat and sleep for their offspring, but they should watch after their welfare at all times. It is too easy to send the child to school for the mental training, and to church and Sunday school for the religious and foster the rest. Make it a point to acquaint yourself with what your boys or girls do, how they stand in their school, who their friends are, and how they spend their leisure hours. Do not be backward in this duty for it is up to you, and you only. If your boy or girl does radically wrong the law takes care of them. If they are dismissed from school, if they are held back a year in their school work they suffer as well as you, but if you watch them carefully none of these things can happen. Think it over. Co-operate with the school authorities. Work with them and then look with pride at your children as they grow to manhood and womanhood.

CHARITABLE WORK. For the past few years the special committee of the Janesville lodge of Elks, of which E. B. Green has been the moving spirit, have taken upon themselves considerable of the charitable work of the city. Working in conjunction with the Associated Charities, and all other organizations that have special committees for this labor of love, Mr. Green's committee has accomplished wonders. The contributions have been liberal, the work has been thorough, and he has made this particular branch of the work, the benevolent and protective order of Elks, a success. It would not have been possible to achieve such results as have been obtained had not other organizations co-operated and all worked in harmony. "The poor are always with us," but this coming winter they will be more than ever. It is up to the average citizen to aid as materially as they can, but do not let charities overlap, so that one family will have a surplus and another nothing. Some are too proud to ask aid who need it, and others seek it with money in the bank. Mr. Green and his fellow workers have the matter well in hand, and with the support of the other committees from various lodges and charitable institutions a happy medium can be reached. Remember the saying, "It is better to give than receive."

AN OLD SAYING. There is an old saying familiar to many. "Money makes the mare go," but in this day and age of gasoline driven machines it is not true. When General Gage took command of the English troops in the thirteen colonies in the pre-revolutionary days, with headquarters at Boston, certain orders and restrictions were made as to trade, and one patriot wrote a friend: "One man can lead a horse to water but a whole army can not make him drink." We all know that "money has made the mare go" in times past, and the second saying is almost a parable, if you ever lived in the country and tried to make a horse drink, when you wanted him to. However, we are in a new day and age and the quicker the politicians understand that their own personal privacies against the federal or state executives are lost sight of the better this country is going to be. If they won't, they will have such a shock they may not find their equilibrium for some time to come. Think it over, a lot of you readers, and see if the logic is not right. One of the first formulas in logic, as taught, is "The moon is round." "A cheese is round," hence (by logic) "The Moon is made of cheese." Fine figuring out, for logic is square or oblong, is it not? The same is true of the political high-wire act and seek to hold up the public under the garb of honest, sweaty citizens. Look out for them!

Talk about universal military training and then go up to the Sixteenth Separate company armory some Tuesday evening and watch those hundred high school boys go through their drill hour. They are taking time for the forelock and not waiting time by the door to learn military drill and discipline.

The people who couldn't take the Hoover food pledge because it calls on them to eat something new, are about the same ones who have always complained at having to eat the same old stuff.

Fish flesh of fowl. On meatless days you can eat fish, but you can't eat the fish or fowl. Considering the price of both, it may be conservation of the flesh supply, but certainly not of the pocketbook.

Just how much satisfaction do striking workmen get out of twenty-five cents more a day, or the employers out of an additional dollar, when the delay means a lot of American boys dying in the trenches?

Considering the way supplies are burning up, it might be well to have a few less policemen twirling their sticks on the main streets in cities and a few more walking around the food storage places at night.

It seems mighty strange to the pacifist college professors that they can't devote their energies to undoing the things that the college that hires them is trying to accomplish.

The people who are running the ship-building program are respectfully reminded that an army camp fight with nutritious rations and large pine boxes on the New York docks.

The fact that a young man couldn't pay $1.00 a week for a Liberty bond doesn't prove that he couldn't enjoy frequent $5.00 blowouts with the sporting crowd.

In Japan some of the newspaper men salute each other as "doctor." In this country some of the journalistic brethren would not feel the compliment was adequate.

A red-headed gunner fired the first shot at the Germans. The Red Head League in the trenches should be well camouflaged.

Some people couldn't buy a Liberty bond because the money is so very safe in the knothole under the attic stairs.

He doesn't seem to know that I am not a really clever guy. He doesn't seem to understand that I own neither stocks or land, or if he does, he doesn't care. But seems to find my friendship rare.

He doesn't know that I'm a dub. Or that our finest tony club would never teach me its grip. And add me to its membership. In every way, both day and night. He seems to think that I'm all right.

He doesn't quarrel with my views. Or jeer at me whenever I lose. He doesn't talk behind my back. Nor share in any mean trick. He doesn't tell a friend or foe the sum of money that I owe.

He thinks that all I do is fine. And that great wisdom here is mine. There's none so rich or great that he could take this loyal friend from me. Some explanation must be had? Well, he's just fine, and I'm his dad.

DIES AS RESULT OF WAGON OVERTURNING

Julius Guese, a wealthy farmer in the town of Center was instantly killed sometime last evening on the Magnolia road about eight miles out of Janesville, when a horse-drawn wagon which he was driving, overturned, pinning him underneath. The body was found by neighbors this morning about seven o'clock. Sheriff Whipple and County Coroner Frank Ryan were notified and made a hurried trip to the scene of the accident.

It would appear that Guese, after delivering a load of barley to his city yesterday, was on his way home last evening, when his team became unmanageable or he was careless and drove so near the top of a six foot embankment on the side of the road, so that the wagon slipped and rolled down the bank and in overturning threw him beneath it, the vehicle resting on his chest. The horses were also thrown with the wagon, but when found this morning they were in good condition.

When Guese's body was discovered this morning it was apparent that while he had been dead some time, in all probability death was instantaneous.

Julius Guese was forty-seven years of age. He is survived by a wife and five children, two boys and three girls. Otto, Arthur, George, Benjamin, and Lizzie, one brother, Charles, of Hanover. Funeral services will be held at the Lutheran church in the town of Center at two o'clock Sunday afternoon. The remains will be cremated.

BROTHERHOOD HOLDS SUCCESSFUL MEETING

Members of the Methodist Brotherhood Given Supper on Wednesday Evening.

One hundred and seven men were present at the first supper of the season of the Methodist Brotherhood at the parlors of the church Wednesday evening. This being the first meeting of the officers of the brotherhood, very much gratified over the results of the membership campaign, which was just completed.

After the supper, a saxophone solo was given by Walter Helms; Arthur Schott and Miss McCulloch sang a duet, and Dr. S. F. Richards and Prof. Thaneau rendered a delightful selection, closing the musical part of the program. Perry Millar gave an interesting talk on church efficiency, pointing out how men all over the state were lining up for aggressive church work. Frank Lewis outlined a plan of work for the men whereby every man in the church may take an active part. With the opening of the revival services, which will begin next Sunday, every man is expected to do his "bit" to make these services felt throughout the city.

Jonah hunted for "inside" information - he went to the right place and found what he was "fishing" for--

Lots of Folks Should Take the Tip

If you want to see how much a square deal price can save for you - our White Front at 210 W. Milwaukee St. is the place to find out - walk in, ask the clerk to show you any cut of meat you want, look it over carefully, AND LOOK AT THE PRICE TAG, ask the clerk to take it aside. Then go into any other market in town and ask to see EXACTLY the same thing, price it, and if the difference won't open your eyes it will be because they have "growned shut." That is the way to find how much of your money goes into the dealer's pocket.

Every meat dealer between Maine and Florida will tell you that he saves you money, BUT, there's a big difference between telling and proving, and you don't need a college professor's brain to see that difference. When the high priced dealer can't meet our prices, he talks "Quality" (?), "Goods," that's his privilege. He is right. We know it because we buy from the same wholesalers that he does, and the salesmen usually call on us first. Those who tell you that you can't buy meat cheaper for cash are the same ones who, on the 15th of the month, grab his high bill in one hand and gas bill in the other and "beats it" to the office to get that "CASH DISCOUNT."

A few years ago we had to crank our little business every morning. It is a "self starter" now. Our prices were not eye openers. FOLKS WOULD SOON FIND IT OUT.

MANY DRAFTED MEN STUDY TELEGRAPHY

Twenty-two Drafted Men Are Studying Telegraphy in Classes Conducted at the Lincoln School.

Rapid progress is being made by the members of the class in telegraphy, which is being conducted at the Lincoln school, building on Monday and Wednesday evenings, under the direction of the vocational school. The enrollment of the class shows that twenty-two young men of the draft age are taking the opportunity of learning the signal work so that when they are called into the army they will be able to render a special service to the government in the signal corps. The quota for this district, which the government has asked for is forty, as so that there is still a chance for those who wish to take up the course. The work in this class is intended for men of the draft age only and the continental code is being learned for use in the army service.

One other class in telegraphy is being conducted, but this class is for both men and women who wish to enter the commercial fields. This class meets on Tuesday and Thursday evenings and has an enrollment of thirty. At the present time four classes are being conducted during the school year of the week with instructors from the university extension department in charge of the work. This is an unusual record for a city of this size. As it is very seldom that it is possible to secure this number of instructors.

In addition to the class in salesmanship which has been very popular with all the young people of the city who are employed in the stores, the classes in advertising, cost accounting and principals of accounting are being offered and the response has been very great. Eighteen men of the city who are interested and who write advertisements are taking the advertising course under the direction of Mr. Nichols, from the University of Wisconsin. The courses in accounting are well attended by the young men and women who are following that line of work.

CORRECTION
The price of Pride of Holland Coffee in Hinterschied's last advertisement was quoted as 48c per pound. It should have been 28c per pound.

Test Apparatus: Chief Klein this afternoon tested the new apparatus for pumping which has recently been received for the new fire truck. The work done by the new outfit was highly satisfactory and lives up to the guarantee in every respect.

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

Bessie Love, who has just been signed by Pathé, has the distinction of being not only one of the youngest screen stars, but of having reached the top of her profession in one short year. Unlike many of the favorites of the screen, she did not come to mov-braids hanging down her back, went out to Hollywood determined to get an engagement before the camera. It mattered little how small. Mindful of the old saying that "Opportunity knocks but once, and that girl who would do big things must do the small things well," she put her best in the first small part that came to her. The impression that she made upon the director by her earnestness and adaptability resulted in her being placed at his request upon the list of especially desirable extras. Then came Jack O'Brien looking for a good type to play a Swedish servant girl in a play in which John Emerson was to be the star. It was not a small part this time and he was most particular to choose a girl who was thoroughly competent. He saw Miss Love doing an extra part in a picture being staged by another director and decided that she was the person he wanted. That picture, "The Flying Torpedo," was the making of Miss Love. From then on she was a factor to be considered. As a direct result of her work in it, she was given a part opposite William S. Hart in "The Arran." The result was that she scored again. When Douglas Fairbanks came to Los Angeles he determined that Miss Love and one other also should be in his leading woman. In consequence she was with him in "The Good Bad Man," "Reggie Mixes In," etc. Then she played with De Wolf Hopper in "Stranded," and then with Wilfred Lucas in "Hell to Texas."

For the last few months little Miss Love has been starred in her own pictures, among them being "Nina, the Flower Girl," "A Daughter of the Poor," "Cheerful Givers," "His Daughter's Ring," "Wee Lady Betty," and the last, "Polly Ann."

"PASS TO BROADWAY" WORKS
George M. Cohan recently received a letter from a prospective bridegroom who was under the impression Cohan was the boss of the great white way, and asked for a pass to Broadway. Cohan sent his personal card, writing thereon: "Pass bearer and bid him." All of which was a subtle bit of kidding on George M.'s part. But the real laugh came when Cohan received a letter thanking him for the passes. The Reuben came to Broadway, showed the card to a policeman, was directed to Cohan's theater in 42d street, and the doorman honored the card.

SUFFRAGE WORKERS GATHER NEXT WEEK

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Nov. 9.—The Wisconsin Suffrage convention, which opens in Milwaukee next Wednesday will assume the nature of a jubilee of national interest.

Many nationally known suffrage workers will appear and hundreds of delegates from all parts of Wisconsin will be present.

The program as arranged indicates a celebration of the many suffrage victories of the last year. The Wisconsin Women's Suffrage association, at the meeting, will lay plans for a big drive in the Badger state next year.

At the beginning of 1917, eleven states had full suffrage; the territory of Alaska also had complete suffrage, and Illinois presidential suffrage. During the year presidential suffrage has come in Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Nebraska, Rhode Island and North Dakota; primary suffrage to Arkansas, state-wide municipal suffrage to Vermont, and municipal suffrage to the city of Ohio. There have been several important steps toward national suffrage.

A special feature of the convention next week will be the address by Mrs. Nellie McClung of Edmonton, Canada, who has been leader in the suffrage movement in that country.

The convention will take up three amendments to the state constitution as follows:
Amendment proposed by Miss Robinson to Section IV, Article 3.—The executive board shall consist of standing officers, the chairmen of standing committees and one member from each auxiliary county association to be selected by the said county association.

The executive board shall hold a meeting immediately prior to the assembling of the state convention, and another meeting at the close of the convention. It shall elect the special and standing committees, and it shall upon all business referred to it by the convention.
Amendment proposed by Mrs. Thannauer to Section IV, Article 3.—The executive board shall be substituted for the words board where these appear in official board where these appear in the constitution, namely: In Section III, Article 3 in Section IV, Article 3 in Section IV, Article 4.

ARMOUR'S OATS

"Reduced My Living Costs
At Least 25%"

Those are the exact words of one thrifty housewife, who further adds:

"I am able to prepare them in so many different, economical ways. They make such good oatmeal bread, pancakes and cookies."

No wonder Armour's Oats are preferred in so many homes. Consider the economy in serving such a low-cost food in at least 50 different ways. That's what you can do!

Try the worth-while recipes on every package in planning appetizing menus for breakfast, luncheon or dinner. Your grocer has Armour's Oats.

TEACH SCHOOL GIRLS FOOD CONSERVATION

Recipes Show That Barley, Cornmeal, Bran and Graham Flour May Be Used With Success.

Several recipes which have been used successfully by the domestic science department of the local high school are printed below, which will be of interest to the housewives of the city. A display of the different kinds of bread, muffins, cakes and cookies made from these recipes is now on exhibition at the Skelly Grocery Co.

A few of the recipes follow:

Liberty Bread.
Pour 2 cups boiling water over 1½ cups of rolled oats, add 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ cup brown sugar, and 1 tablespoon fat. When cooled add yeast cake dissolved in ¼ cup lukewarm water. Measure 3 cups white flour and stir in enough to make a stiff dough; let rise until double in size, mold in two loaves, using the rest of the flour. Place in greased pans, let rise four, and bake one hour. The fat may be omitted from this recipe; ½ cup of bran or a mixture of bran and cornmeal may be substituted in larger quantities.

Superior to white bread—richer in protein, fat, mineral matter and roughage. Contains enough wheat flour to make it rise and enough oat flour to increase its food value.
Barley Bread.
2 pints scalded milk.
2 tablespoons shortening.
1 teaspoon salt.
3 tablespoons sugar.
1 cake compressed yeast.
3 cups barley flour.
4 cups wheat flour.

To the milk, add the shortening, salt and sugar; when cooled to a lukewarm temperature, add the yeast mixed with the ½ cup of lukewarm water, the barley flour and wheat flour as needed to make a dough that may be kneaded. Use white flour in kneading. Cover and let stand in a warm place until double in bulk. Shape for two brick loaf pans. When again light, bake one hour.

Trilby Cookies.
1 cup brown sugar.
1 cup shortening.
½ cup sour milk.
1 teaspoon soda.
2 cups flour.
2 cups oatmeal.
½ lb. dates.
1 cup sugar.
1 cup water.

Method.
Cream shortening and sugar. Mix and sift soda with the flour, add flour, oatmeal and sour milk gradually until all is added. The mixture should be very stiff. Roll as thinly as possible. Cut, bake 10 minutes. To oven, filling wash and stone dates, cut or chop. Cook with sugar and water until of right consistency to be spread.

Little Cakes for War Time.
(Golden Drop Cakes.)
Grate the rind of an orange into a bowl; add ¼ cup of shortening and beat to a cream; gradually beat in 1 cup of sugar, 2 well beaten eggs, ¼ cup of orange juice and 1 and ½ cups of pastry flour and ¾ cup of pastry flour sifted with four teaspoonsful of baking powder. Mix thoroughly. Drop by teaspoonful on a buttered baking sheet. Bake in quick oven.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, Nov. 9.—There is a lively campaign being carried on here for the Y. M. C. A. fund. The quota for this city is $1250 and should be raised next week. The local committee consists of F. R. Bloodgood, T. M. Blackman, J. Kachel, J. A. Walde, H. C. Humphrey and A. H. Fricker. The normal school was fund $1,000 toward the college war fund and yesterday the college war fund $1200 being subscribed. The town of Whitewater is asked to raise $200 and the committee—A. C. Engle, Almond Peterson, Ralph Traut and F. H. Williams have already organized their campaign. Short talks on the Y. M. C. A. work will be given at the White and Strand theaters Saturday evening.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am fifteen years old and I went to a party on Halloween night. The boy who lives next door took me, but we were not invited to go together. I met a nice-looking boy, who asked to take me home, and I let him. Did I do right?

(2) The boy next door got awful mad and he doesn't walk home from school with me anymore or speak to me. What can I do to retain his friendship?

(3) There is going to be a Christmas dance at school and the boy next door asked me. Do you think he will take me now? Should I wait and go with him, or should I accept another invitation if I get it?

(4) Since the boy who lives next door took me to the party, he of course expected to take you home. You should not have given the other boy permission without first talking it over with the boy next door.

(5) Sometime when you see him in his yard or on the street go up to him and tell him you did not realize you would hurt his feelings by letting the other boy take you home. Tell him that you are sorry and that you hope he will forgive you. If he does not, let it come between your friendship.

(6) It will probably not consider taking you unless you say something to him about the other night. If he can't forgive you, let it go. You can't expect you to hold your engagement for the dance open for him. If he remains angry, consider yourself free to accept another invitation.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: One day begins to wither.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am in love with two boys. One is twenty-three and the other is twenty-one. I am eighteen years old. Mr. P. doesn't ever say anything about my going with Mr. T., but he is writing some of her letters. I am asking if it would be correct for me to sit with her.

BON, R. M.

Yes, by making room for you when she saw you, she invited you to come and sit by her and it would have been all right for you to have done so. It was thoughtful of you not to want to disturb her, but you could have sat down by her and not disturbed her work.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a friend who is a very good looking girl. She has a wart on her finger which makes her very unhappy. Can you tell me how she could get rid of it?

MISS T. AND P.

At eighteen years of age, you are too young to be in love, and it is quite natural for you to like two young men equally well. Since Mr. P. does not mind your going with other men, I should think you would respect him more. No man has a right to say with whom a girl should go unless he is engaged to her. If I were you, I would disregard Mr. T.'s wishes and if he doesn't like it, let him go.

LOST AND FOUND AGAIN.

Before I insert the several lost notes that have come to me since our last issue of this column, let me send my very cordial thanks to the many readers who found "A Shropshire Lad" for me. I have thanked by letter all those who enclosed their addresses, but there were several who preferred to remain anonymous and I don't want them to be unthanked. I was delighted to have the poem again and actually liked it as well as I thought I did something which does not always happen when one reads an old friend.

Several other lost notes were also found but I think I was able to thank all the finders by mail. An Old Fashioned Scrapbook Poem and going to take the liberty of writing a letter friend, "of asking if any of your numerous readers can recall the whole of this dear little piece of poetry, I only remember two verses."

No higher tribute could be paid to the high quality and absolute dependability of Calumet. It is the final proof of Calumet's superiority.

It goes to show—and show positively—that the big demand for Calumet is founded on dependability—that the millions of housewives who use Calumet were not mistaken in their choice. The leader with the majority of American housewives—and the selection of critical experts of the military departments. Absolute evidence that it is the best baking powder obtainable.

Why not profit by that proof—and order a can today.

A man or woman eating alone in a hotel dining room may take a newspaper along to read while waiting for breakfast. The service books or magazines should not appear in such places.

Phyllis: There are tall slim glasses, with glass saucers, and long handed spoons used in serving the tea, and all housekeepers should have them if they serve this delicious beverage often. Powdered sugar should always be passed with it, and an elegant touch with the skin on it, should be laid on each saucer, so that a little of the juice may be squeezed into the tea without soiling the fingers. After stirring, the spoon should be laid on the saucer and the tea should be served. The lemon should be cut in two transversely first, then each half should be cut in four pieces, cutting toward the end of the fruit.

X. I am sure in reason why your wedding should be postponed merely because your fiancé is going to war. Since he wishes his enlistment to make no difference regarding the date of marriage, I think that you should comply with his request and marry him on the day set. MENU HINT

Breakfast: Bananas, Cracked Wheat, Coffee, Luncheon: Cream of Tomato Soup, Croutons, Drop Cakes, Tea, Dinner: Sheppard's Pie, String Beans, Graham Muffins, Butter, Tapioca Cream.

HINTS FOR PIE BAKERS.

The next time you bake pies, especially juicy pies, try adding a little corn starch to the crust. One teaspoonful to a pie will prevent the under crust from being heavy. Try mixing the sugar and flour and adding it to the fruit before putting your pie together. The pie will be more evenly sweetened and you will not bite into lumps of flour. Do not stretch the top crust tight in pressing the edges together, push the edge of the top crust toward the center of the pie. This allows plenty of room for the fruit to cook and prevents the crust from bursting open and the juice escaping. Save an ounce of juice or an ounce of meat or potato.

SAVE STALE BREAD: IT HAS MANY USES

Here are several different ways of using stale bread which perhaps will be of some help to many women. Dressing—Put stale bread in hot water till soft, then drain in cloth bag. Put in pan, and salt, pepper, celery salt and buttered sage. Fry onion in little bacon fryings or other good drippings, then add this onion to bread mixture, and mix well, then make croquettes. Let stand for about one hour, then fry and either fry them or just before taking out a roast beef or veal put croquettes in gravy. Let fry for five minutes. They are very good and make a pretty decoration by putting a small spray of parsley in each croquette and putting them around the roast. They are a good substitute for potatoes.

Breaded Chops—Use one small can tomatoes, five pork or lamb chops, one onion and grated stale bread. Put one row of bread crumbs on bottom of casserole, then chops (if veal or lamb is used instead of pork chops put small piece of butter on bread crumbs), salt, paprika and small piece of onion spread over one-half the apples (about one cup). Sprinkle with one-third cup sugar, nutmeg, little lemon juice and little of the rind, repeat till one quart of apples is used and three-quarters cup sugar, grate rind and juice of one-half lemon, cover with remaining crumbs and bake in moderate oven forty minutes. Cover first to prevent crumbs from browning too rapidly. Sprinkle with sugar and cream.

Bread and Butter Apple Pudding—Cover bottom of a shallow baking dish with apple sauce. Cut stale bread into one-third inch slices, spread with softened butter, remove crusts and cut in triangular shaped pieces, then arrange closely together over apples. Sprinkle generously with sugar and vanilla. Bake in moderate oven and serve with cream.

Letter to Two Women

By Zoe Beckley

From May Bond, Wife, to Kate Danekol, New Bride.

Kerryville, Kan., Oct. 1.
Kate, Kate, Kate! I am too excited to write! What do you mean by celebrating your twenty-seventh birthday getting married and did it! And casual way you just manage to mention it! Why, Kate, it is enough to bring me down in a fever! Whose only excitement is a quarrel with Curt and trip to Paola (pro-nounced Mustard, our nag, to buy preserve jars.

Excuse all these exclamations, dear, but they don't begin to express the startlement I felt when I got your letter. I vowed to Curt I'd get married—Kate is M.A.R. MIED! And when Curt went right on reading his paper, I jumped over, shook his arm and repeated my news.

"I heard you," he said. And I wanted to go out and kick the barn to pieces. That is one of the things about Curt. His Bond that makes me so furious, his unresponsiveness. But what I prefer to write about my troubles; I prefer your joy?

Don't let it darling, as I urged before, that affair was unwholesome, not to say dangerous, to you both. Nothing good could ever have come of it. And when Curt was having some making C. J. more of a weakling than ever—forgive me dear, if I speak too plainly. I never could see what you saw in C. J. what somebody else sees in somebody else!

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Why Worry About Your Arteries?

It is contrary to our hygienic principles to make folks who have thin, dilute blood, and when the adrenal gland secretes too much adrenin, that contracts the arteries and tends to wear them out, but Old Dr. Roget falls in with our theory, and we can't find the word, but it means something a little less than worry and a little more than ignore. That is what we want folks to do about their arteries and their blood pressure.

Every man or woman who owns a set of arteries should have them inspected and tested once a year by a doctor. Arterial hardening is accomplished, generally, by a gradual rise in blood pressure above the normal limit for the patient's age. The blood pressure does not, for the time being, produce hardening or degeneration of the artery walls. We cannot conceive arteriosclerosis as independent of degeneration of other organs. We must think of the process as a premature generation or wearing out of the whole body, every fibre and cell of it, through lack of proper health, heart, kidneys and brain. When the gradual hardening of the arteries begins it necessarily involves such organs as are most richly supplied with small terminal arteries. Hence in the examination of the patient the doctor investigates as carefully as possible the state of the heart, the kidneys and the brain, for it is in these organs that terminal arteries are most numerous and important.

Increased resistance to the circulation, offered by the more rigid, less elastic arterial wall, throws added work upon the heart muscle; a heart work amount of overwork of heart muscle becomes imperative to meet the increased resistance and maintain an efficient circulation. Therefore some enlargement of the heart must occur in arteriosclerosis.

Probably the gradual hardening of the arterial walls begins in the smallest arterioles, the terminal arteries. Therefore the doctor makes a careful chemical and microscopic analysis of the urine, or rather repeated analysis, before arriving at a definite diagnosis. The ailment commonly known as Bright's disease is in fact known as arteriosclerosis, part and parcel of arteriosclerosis, and gradual heart failure and anoxemia (stroke of malacia) are like-

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Treatment of Anemia.

What treatments or exercises would you suggest for a long standing case of anemia? Should one with anemia be under a doctor's care, or will a simple remedy restore the needed iron in the blood? (Miss E. P.)

ANSWER.—Two miles of oxygen three times a day on the roof is a good combination of exercise and medicine for anemia. One with anemia should be under a doctor's care at least long enough for the doctor to determine the underlying cause is found and remedied. Space does not permit mention of the many causes here. In the total mass of blood in your body in health there is perhaps a good teaspoon of iron. Lack of iron is rarely if ever a cause of anemia, and the administration of iron pills, or even of iron tonic, is not a remedy, but is based upon conjecture, and not upon facts.

The Pepsin Habit.

What would be the effect of taking three to five grains of pepsin tablets after each meal? Would it produce any harmful effect upon the body? (C. A. P.)

ANSWER.—Probably no effect. If pepsin is absent from the gastric juice

(and it is almost never absent, even in the diseases) it might aid digestion. But as a general rule the use of pepsin is without any appreciable effect upon the body.

PUBLIC MUST AID IN TUBERCULOSIS PREVENTION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, Nov. 8.—Wisconsin, as all other states, faces the necessity of renewed activity for prevention of tuberculosis, during the period of the war and afterward, according to Dr. John Bessel, Milwaukee, delegate to the ninth annual convention of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association, which opened here today.

Scores of interested workers from all parts of the state—members of the association and outsiders—attended the sessions. War problems, as affecting the work of the association, occupied most of the discussion. It was pointed out that the increasing employment of women in industries with resultant greater chances for contact with tuberculosis, is a new menace to be met.

AN OPERATION AVERTED

Philadelphia, Pa.—"One year ago I was very sick and I suffered with pains in my side and back until I nearly went crazy. I went to different doctors and they all said I had female troubles and would not get any relief until I would be operated on. I had suffered for four years before this time, but I kept getting worse the more medicine I took. Every month since I was a young girl I had suffered with cramps in my sides at periods and was never regular. I saw your advertisement in the newspaper and the picture of a woman who had been saved from an operation and this picture was impressed on my mind. The doctor had given me only two more days to make up my mind so I sent my husband to the drug store at once for a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and believe me, I soon noticed a change and when I had finished the third bottle I was cured and never felt better. I grant you the privilege to publish my letter and am only too glad to let other women know of my cure."—Mrs. Thos. McGonigal, 3402 Hartville Street, Phila., Pa.

King of the Khyber Rifles

A Romance of Adventure
By TALBOT MUNDY

(Copyright by Bobbe-Merrill Company)

"I suppose you've been pestering him for an appointment?" King, with his month full of curry, did not answer, but his eyes smiled. After lunch he was closeted with the general again for twenty minutes. Then one of the general's carriages took him to the station, and it did not appear to trouble him at all that the other occupant of the carriage was the self-same Major Hyde who had sat next him at lunch. In fact, he smiled so pleasantly that Hyde grew exasperated. Neither of them spoke. At the station Hyde lost his temper openly, and King left him abusing an unhappy native servant.

The station was crammed to suffocation by a crowd that roared and whistled and snorted to high heaven. But the general himself had telephoned for King's reservation, so he took his time. There were din and shriek and dust beneath a savage sun, shaken into reverberations by the scream of an engine's safety valve. It was India in essence and awake—India arising out of lethargy—India as she is more often nowadays—and it made King, for the time being of the Khyber Rifles, happier than some other men can be in ballrooms.

Any one who watched him—and there was at least one man who did—must have noticed his strange ability, almost like that of water, to reach the point he aimed for, through, and not around, the crowd.

He neither shoved nor argued. Orders and blows would have been equally useless, for had it tried the crowd could not have obeyed, and it was in no mind to try. Without the least apparent effort he arrived—and there is no other word that quite describes it—arrived. He climbed into his carriage and leaned from the window.

"Why are you here?" asked an acid voice behind him; and without troubling to turn his head, he knew that Major Hyde was to be his carriage mate again.

"Orders," said King.

"Is that your answer?" asked the major. Barked ambition is an ugly horse to ride. He had tried for a command but had been shelved.

"I have sufficient authority," said King, unruffled. He spoke as if he were thinking of something entirely different. His eyes were as if they saw the major from a very long way off and rather approved of him on the whole.

"Show me your authority, please."

King dived into an inner pocket and produced a card that had about ten words written on its face, above a general's signature. Hyde read it and pushed it back.

"So you're one of those, are you?" he said in a tone of voice that would start a fight in some parts of the world and in some services. But King nodded cheerfully, and that annoyed the major more than ever; he snorted, closed his mouth with a snap and turned to rearrange the sheet and pillow on his berth.

CHAPTER II.

The train pulled out, amid a din of voices from the left-behind that nearly drowned the panting of the overloaded engine. Hyde all but stripped himself and drew on striped pajamas. King was content to lie in shirt sleeves on the other berth, with knees raised, so that Hyde could not overlook the general's papers. At his ease he studied them one by one, memorizing a string of names, with details as to their owners' antecedents and probable present whereabouts. There were several photographs in the packet, and he studied them very carefully indeed.

But much more carefully of all he examined Yasmin's portrait, returning to it again and again. He reached the conclusion in the end that when it was taken she had been cunningly disguised.

"This was intended for purpose of identification at a given time and place," he told himself.

"Were you muttering at me?" asked Hyde.

"No sir. Nothing of the sort intended."

Hyde turned an indignant back on him, and King studied the back as if he found it interesting. On the whole he looked sympathetic, so it was as well that Hyde did not look around. Barked ambition as a rule loathes sympathy.

pathy.

After many prickly-hot, interminable, jolting hours the train drew up at Rawal-Pindi station. Instantly King was on his feet with his trunk on, and he was out on the blazing hot platform before the train's motion had quite ceased.

He began to walk up and down, not elbowing but percolating through the crowd, missing nothing worth noticing in all the hot kaleidoscope and seeming to find new amusement at every turn. It was not in the least astonishing that a well-dressed native should address him presently, for he looked genial enough to be asked to hold a baby. King himself did not seem surprised at all. Far from it; he looked pleased.

"Excuse me, sir," said the man in a glub babu English. "I am seeking Captain King sahib, for whom my brother is very anxious to be servant. Can you kindly tell me, sir, where I could find Captain King sahib?"

"Certainly," King answered him. He looked glad to be of help. "Are you traveling on this train?"

The question sounded like politeness welling from the lips of unsuspicion.

"Yes, sir. I am traveling from this place where I have spent a few days, to Bombay, where my business is."

"How did you know King sahib is on the train?" King asked him, smiling so genially that even the police could not have charged him with more than curiosity.

"By telegram, sir. My brother had the misfortune to miss Captain King sahib at Peshawar and therefore sent a telegram to me asking me to do what I can at an interview."

"I see," said King. "I see." And judging by the sparkle in his eyes as he looked away, he could see a lot. But the native could not see his eyes at that instant, although he tried to.

He looked back at the train, giving the man a good chance to study his face in profile.

"See that carriage?" he asked, pointing. "The fourth first-class carriage from the end? Well—there are only two of us in there; I'm Major Hyde, and the other is Captain King. I'll tell Captain King to look out for you."

"Oh, thank you, sir," said the native obligingly. "You are most kind! I am your humble servant, sir."

King nodded good-by to him, his dark eyes in the shadow of the khaki helmet seeming scarcely interested any longer. "Couldn't you find another berth?" Hyde asked him angrily when he stepped back into the compartment.

"What were you out there looking for?"

King smiled back at him blandly. "I think there are railway thieves on the train," he announced without any effort at relevance. He might not have heard the question.

Hyde snorted and returned to his seat in the silence of unspeakable scorn. But presently he opened a suitcase and drew out a repeating pistol which he cocked carefully and stowed beneath his pillow; not at all a contemptible move, because the Indian railway thief is the most resourceful specialist in the world. But King took no overt precautions of any kind.

After more interminable hours night shut down on them, red-hot, black-dark, mesmerizedly subdivided into seconds by the thump of carriage wheels and lit at intervals by showers of sparks from the gasping engine. Then King, strangely without kicking off his shoes, drew a sheet up over his shoulders. On the opposite berth Hyde covered his head, to keep dust out of his hair, and presently King, heard him begin to snore gently. Then, very carefully he adjusted his own position so that his profile lay outlined in the dim light from the gas lamp in the roof. He might almost have been waiting to be shaved. Long after midnight his vigil was rewarded by a slight sound at the door. From that instant his eyes were on the watch, under dark closed lashes; but his even breathing was that of the seventh stage of sleep that knows no dreams.

A click of the door-latch heralded the appearance of a hand. With skill, of the sort that only special training can develop, a man in native dress insinuated himself into the carriage without making another sound of any kind. King's ears are part of the equipment for his exacting business, but he could not hear the door click shut again.

For about five minutes, while the train swayed headlong into Indian darkness, the man stood listening and watching King's face. He stood so near that King recognized him for the one who had accosted him on Rawal-

He Feigned Sleep So Successfully That the Native Turned Away at Last.

Pindi platform. And he could see the outline of the knife-belt that the man's fingers clutched underneath his shirt. He feigned sleep so successfully that the native turned away at last.

"Thought so!" He dared open his eyes a mile wider. "His pulka—true to type! Rob first and then kill!"

As he watched, the thief drew the sheet back from Hyde's face, with trained fingers that could have taken spectacles from the victim's nose without his knowledge. Then as a fish glides in and out among the reeds without touching them, swift and soft and unseen, his fingers searched Hyde's body. They found nothing.

King moved in his sleep, rather noisily, and the movement knocked a book to the floor from the foot of his berth. The noise of that awake Hyde, and King pretended to begin to wake, yawning and rolling on his back (that being much the safest position an unarmed man can take and much the most awkward for his enemy).

"Thieves!" Hyde yelled at the top of his lungs, groping wildly for his pistol and not finding it.

King sat up and rubbed his eyes. The native drew the knife, and—believing himself in command of the situation—hesitated for one priceless second. He saw his error and darted for the door too late. With a movement unbelievably swift King was there ahead of him; and with another movement not so swift, but much more disconcerting, he threw his sheet as the refrain used to throw a net in ancient Rome. It wrapped round the native's head and arms, and the two went together to the floor in a twisted stranglehold.

In another half-minute the native was growling, for King had his knife-wrist in two hands and was bending it backward while he pressed the man's stomach with his knees.

The knife fell to the floor, and the thief made a gallant effort to recover it, but King was too strong for him. He seized the knife himself, slipped it in his own bosom and resumed his hold before the native guessed what he was after. The train screamed itself to a standstill at a wayside station, and a man with a lantern began to chant the station's name. The instant the train's motion altogether ceased the heat shut in on them as if the lid of Tophet had been slammed. The prickly heat burst out all over Hyde's skin and King's too.

There was plenty of excuse for relaxing hold, and King made full use of it. A second later he gave a very good pretense of pain in his finger ends as the thief burst free. The native made a dive at his bosom for the knife, but he frustrated that. Then he made a promising effort, just too late, to clutch the man again, and he did succeed in tearing loose a piece of shirt; but the fleeing robber must have wondered, as he bolted into the blacker shadows of the station building, why such an iron-fingered, wide-awake sahib should have made such a truly feeble showing at the end.

"Hang it!—couldn't you hold him? Were you afraid of him, or what?" demanded Hyde, beginning to dress himself. Instead of answering, King leaned out into the lamp-lit gloom, and in a minute he caught sight of a sergeant of native infantry passing down the train. He made a sign that brought the man to him on the run.

"Did you see that runaway?" he asked.

"Ha, sahib. I saw one running. Shall I follow?"

"No. This piece of his shirt will identify him. Take it. Hide it! When a man with a torn shirt, into which that piece fits, makes for the telegraph office after this train has gone on, see that he is allowed to send any telegrams he wants to! Only, have copies of every one of them wired to Captain King, care of the stationmaster, Delhi. Have you understood?"

"Ha, sahib."

"Grab him, and lock him up tight afterward—but not until he has sent his telegrams!"

"Atcha, sahib."

"Make yourself scarce, then!"

Major Hyde was dressed, having performed that military evolution in something less than record time.

"Who was that you were talking to?" he demanded. But King did not seem to understand until the native sergeant had quite vanished into the shadows.

Dinner Stories

"What is the price of white tape?" asked the lady.

"Five cents per yard," said the assistant.

"That's very dear," said the lady.

"Well, you see," said the hopeful assistant, seeing his master's eyes upon him, "it's on account of the scarcity of tageworms."

Derrigan lived in an old cottage which stood in a field near the high road to Delhi. The foundations of the house were lower than the road, through which ran a great water main. As the living floor of the house was raised on posts to make it level with the highway, it left a large cellar underneath, where Derrigan kept several hens. One day the water main burst, flooded the cellar and drowned the hens.

Derrigan immediately put in a claim for damages. After a long delay and much trouble influential friends assisted the old man to get $10 in settlement of his claims.

That evening he saw Mrs. Cassidy, his next-door neighbor, sitting on her back steps.

"I got me money from the district council," he called to her.

"Did yez, then, Mr. Derrigan? It's glad I am. How much did yez get?"

"Two pounds."

"Glory be! An' hev yez the money?"

"I hev not, but I had it."

"What did yez do with it?"

"Sure, I bought $10 worth of ducks wid it."

"Have you three orchestra seats in the first row, center, for tonight?" asked the young man at the theater box office.

"Yes, sir," promptly returned the ticket seller.

"Well, I guess I don't want them," replied the other. "The show can't be any good."

The Drinking of Water

(By M. C. Lucas, M. D.)

The general conclusions of the latest Medical Scientists prove that drinking of plenty of pure water both between meals and with one's meals is beneficial to health. It has now been proven by means of the X-rays and actual tests upon many healthy young men that the drinking of water with meals is not harmful to digestion. Therefore if you want to keep healthy drink plenty of pure water (not ice water). If you ever suffer from backache, lumbago, rheumatism or any of the symptoms of kidney trouble—such as deep colored urine, sediment in urine, getting out of bed at night frequently and other troublesome effects, take a little Anuric before meals. These Anuric Tablets can be obtained at almost any drug store in this country.

FARMERS ADVOCATE USE OF SOY BEANS

Several Rock County Farmers Are Planting Soy Beans and Find It Profitable.

In the last issue of the Wisconsin Farmer, the handling of the soy bean crop in Rock county was taken up and the following article explains the results.

Wisconsin farmers are beginning to give the soy bean a try as a hay and forage crop for dairy cows and hogs. Its adaptability to almost all soil conditions and its satisfactory growth, even on wet soil, gives it every right to be considered a field crop.

L. A. Mackham, county agent for Rock county, for this reason tried to emphasize the usefulness of the soy bean as a field crop during the silo meeting held in the county last spring. Quite a number of dairymen tried to grow soy beans in various ways as a result of the latest stirred up during these spring meetings. The results of their trials have, in nearly all cases, been satisfactory, though in some instances frost killed the corn crop before it was fully matured.

A. S. Stauffer of Beloit, raises grade and pure-bred Guernseys. He put in four acres of soy beans this season, cutting two acres in rows twenty-four inches apart and two acres drilled in for a hay crop. In both cases the seed was sown by a drill, but where the beans were sown in rows, only every fourth row of the seed was permitted to remain open, all the other being closed. Seeding in rows gave Mr. Stauffer an opportunity to cultivate the beans. He went over the field four times with the cultivator, stirring the soil and clearing out the weeds. The beans sowed in the rows were harvested for seed and rows were harvested for hay and yielded between twenty and twenty-five bushels per acre in seed.

The two acres sown as a hay crop had no opportunity to be cultivated and grew not nearly as rapidly, nor did they yield as heavily as the cultivated acres. However, approximately a ton of vines and pods per acre were put up as hay.

The feeding value of the soy bean compares favorably with that of alfalfa and Mr. Stauffer finds his cows eating the soy bean hay quite as readily as the alfalfa. They clean up all the stems that are not too hard and woody. When hay is cut at the right time, when the pods are well formed, the stems will not become too woody and the percentage of leaves lost in harvesting will be very small.

Craig of Janesville, has always favored hogging down portions of this season sowed beans in portions of his field at the rate of two-thirds corn and one-third beans. As the corn was frosted, however, unusually early in the season, he put the beans and the corn into the silo to prevent loss of the crop.

T. H. Scotland of Edgerton, and W. A. Dean of Avalon, are two other dairy farmers who have planted soy beans and corn, but put the crop into the silo in great part on account of the frost. Mr. Dean, instead of planting the soy beans at the same time as the corn, let the corn have a head start, and then planted the soy beans. Mr. Charles Deaton of Avalon, has a system of harvesting his soy beans and corn crop with sheep and hogs. He allows the sheep to go into the field first and harvest the entire crop of first and harvest the entire crop of soy beans and following this the hogs get their chance and finish up the corn. Incidentally, Mr. Dean is fortunate in having mature corn this year, as his fields were not affected by the frost to any appreciable extent. The corn on the Scotland farm are next to the sheep on the Scotland farm and they are sold, to be replaced next fall by another crop. The sheep do not eat the corn, but the sheep do eat the soy beans, while not extraordinary in any way, have at least paid for the question is well worth looking into. An admirable crop to grow in the rotation, for it is a good yielder and brings a good return either in feed for live stock or when sold as seed.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

IN BEHALF OF OUR CHILDREN.

"Health first" is right, at all times for our children. God alone knows they all have enough of trouble and sorrow to battle with in this life.

much more severe is life for them if they are just about half normal—the other half all weakness and pain.

I am glad that every student will have a free examination at school, for the one main reason, that so many children are compelled to go to school with a headache, a severe cold, and in fact, oftentimes more serious illness.

Just because the parents are so hard on an absent day showing up on the report card, or perhaps mother wants to attend some society affair, and wants husbands to go to the cafe for lunch, or perhaps she is too busy cleaning house and wants the home to herself. Any way they will have some excuse for the child to go to school even when not in a normal condition, and say it is not right for any mother to do so. Would she want to attend a morning service, a party or anything of the kind, if she were suffering with a headache or some illness of another nature? No! She would think this a very cruel world if the law would bid her go! Yet she will often command her children to stand up to school and expect them to stand up for a day of good marks. I am a mother of three children, and I would rather they attend three days of school a week in a normal condition for the two days of illness in school would bring them no benefit, but to the contrary weaken their whole system. Now of course, the examination of all the children to be sent to school while not in a normal condition is not a custom among the working people entirely, but is just as much the rule in the wealthier classes.

There are thousands of mothers in Janesville, and if each and every mother would adopt the motto, "health first, education second, and third," we would have a stronger and more cheerful generation ahead of us.
